Recruiting Nights Gain in Popularity

Several schools still missing out

The MHSFCA expanded the number of nights and locations for the annual Recruiting Nights this season. We've just completed five nights of recruiting events in eight locations. These Recruiting Nights give our member coaches an opportunity to meet with college coaches from around the mid-west in a relaxed atmosphere. They have a chance to establish a rapport with college coaches beyond that possible during a school day visit and to disseminate information about their players to D2, D3 and NAIA coaches looking to fill their rosters with high quality recruits.

The 2014 Recruiting Nights were held during the first two weeks of December, open contact periods for seniors and all but D1 schools. Our thanks to Mike Zdebski (Walled Lake Western), Nate Williams (Carman Ainsworth), Scott Farley (Jackson), Mark Taylor (Edsel Ford), Noel Dean (Lowell), Jim Hansen (Escanaba), Tim Sanchez (Grayling), and Gary Griffith (Troy) for hosting the events at their high schools.

In all, over 230 prospects and many of their parents from 77 Michigan High Schools met with representatives from 39 colleges from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, North Carolina, Alabama, and Missouri.

Recruiting Nights

To a person everyone who attends one of the Recruiting Nights leaves with a sense of accomplishment.

Colleges that attended one or more of the 2014 Recruiting Nights

Seniors and their Parents

Senior prospects and their parents make live contacts with college representatives – mostly football coaches, discover opportunities for financial assistance, academic program selections, find out about facilities at schools, some of which they had not considered or even heard of before. When Greg Psconda welcomed athletes to his table at Escanaba High School, he led with the questions, “Have you ever heard of Alma College? Do you know where Alma is?” Many of the responses were “No”. How many of your potential college players and their parents have thought about playing at an MIAA school; Earlham College in Richmond, Indiana; Lakeland College in Sheboygan, Wisconsin? Do they know that Finlandia University is starting a program in Hancock, Michigan?

College Coaches

College recruiters have contacted kids they weren't able to find in school and gotten a chance to know prospects, including those they may already have met and been following - and their parents, in much greater depth than they would have in a school setting. They've also saved hours of travel time and expense.

We need more of you, our members, to get to a Recruiting Night! You have other things that crowd your schedule in December and the distance to a Recruiting Night can be a disqualifying factor. So how do we get you there? Have an idea? We'd like to hear it and will do everything possible to get you to one of these events!

Compilation of how all 50 states handle competitive balance

By Scott Patsko, Northeast Ohio Media Group

CLEVELAND, Ohio – In 1999, the debate over how public and private school athletics should coexist in Georgia took a turn. Fittingly, a high school debate team played a large role.

House Speaker Tom Murphy introduced a bill requiring all private schools to be bumped up a classification and forced to play larger schools. At the root of Murphy's bill was his hometown public school, which was having a hard time getting past private rivals. Among the struggling programs was the debate team, coached by Murphy's daughter-in-law.

The bill passed the House, 129-45. Passage in the Senate seemed very likely.

The Georgia High School Association, which oversees sports (and activities such as debate), scrambled to find a compromise. What it came up with was a multiplier formula. Already in use by neighboring Alabama, the formula multiplied private school enrollment by 1.5, causing many to be placed in a higher GHSA classification.

By 2011, the multiplier formula was in use by half a dozen states, and the Ohio High School Athletic Association was trying to join the group. It's still trying.

Principals statewide have until Thursday at 4 p.m. to vote on the OHSAA's fourth competitive balance referendum in as many years. The previous three failed by narrow margins.

While multipliers in other states vary, none have gone the route the OHSAA hopes to go. With its sports-specific formula, the OHSAA wants to break the mold created by Alabama.

Instead of the popular flat multiplier for all sports, the OHSAA proposal uses multipliers of two (football), five (basketball, baseball, softball, volleyball) or six (soccer). It will also be applied to public schools with open enrollment.

Even if the OHSAA's latest plan is voted down, competitive balance is sure to remain an issue in Ohio, as it is across the country.

Here's a look at what other states do – or don't do – to combat the issue of competitive balance:

(States without a modification for private schools, no current plans to add one, or no noteworthy history with the issue are listed as NM.)

Alabama: The first state to adopt a multiplier (1999). A 1.35 multiplier is applied to all private school enrollments. The state association settled on 1.35 due to data that indicated athletic participation in private schools is 35 percent higher than at public schools.

Alaska: NM

Illinois went to a multiplier system about 10 years ago to try to level the playing field between private and public schools. Pictured is the 2013 Illinois High School Association football state championship game for Class 8A, the largest division in the state. Private school Chicago Mt. Carmel, wearing white jerseys, defeated public school Glenbard North of Carol Stream, 28-14. Mt. Carmel then dropped to 7A in 2014 and defeated another public school, Lake Zurich, 30-0, in the state championship game. (Photo courtesy of Visual Image Photography/www.VIPIS.com)

Arizona: NM

Arkansas: Non-public schools with 80 or more students in grades 10-12 are moved up one classification. A multiplier was used in the past, leading to a court battle. The state association was sued by a school that was moved up two classifications and won three football games with a roster of 25 players. The court ruled that the multiplier was not unconstitutional.

California: NM

Colorado: Competitive balance is an ongoing debate. A private school success advancement system was voted down in 2013.

Connecticut: A 2.0 multiplier is applied to basketball only. Also, a point system based on tournament success is used to further adjust enrollment.

Delaware: NM

District of Columbia: NM

Florida: Has separation of private and public schools in select sports among small schools.

Georgia: Ended a 1.5 multiplier formula for private schools in 2008 after eight years. Data showed that the multiplier did not impact the percentage of private schools winning state titles. Separation of private and public schools in the state's small-school division was approved in 2012.

Hawaii: Each island sets rules for reaching state tournaments. Most have publics and privates compete with each other.

Idaho: NM

Illinois: A 1.65 multiplier is applied to private and non-boundaried schools in all sports. The state association was sued by 37 schools in 2005, leading to a settlement requiring that the multiplier go to a vote of member schools. It passed. A success advancement system was later added to alter division placement based on a team's recent postseason success. Schools may petition to move up a classification.

Indiana: A success advancement system is used, requiring that teams in all sports to move up a classification based on postseason performance.

Iowa: NM

Kansas: Proposals have been made to separate public and private schools, or move private schools into higher classifications.

Kentucky: NM

Louisiana: There has been talk in recent years of private schools forming their own association.

Maine: The state association is on record as opposing separation of public and private schools.

Maryland: Separate tournaments and state associations for public and private schools.

Massachusetts: NM

Michigan: Schools have the option to move up a division.

Minnesota: A reverse multiplier is used to reduce enrollment in some schools. The formula is based on the number of students in a school activity program and the number registered for free or reduced lunch.

Mississippi: The state association has 13 private schools. A group of school administrators failed to ban private schools from joining the state association in 2013. Other privates compete in an independent state association that also features schools from Arkansas and Louisiana.

Missouri: A 1.35 multiplier is applied to private schools in all sports. An additional 2.0 multiplier is applied to single-sex schools. A court ruled that the multipliers were not unconstitutional.

Montana: NM

Nebraska: Multiplier and other enrollment adjustment proposals have been defeated.

Nevada: A point system, based on recent success, is used to move teams up or down a division every two years.

New Hampshire: NM

New Jersey: There are multiple classifications and tournaments for public and non-public schools. Some sports bring multiple state champions together to create a Tournament of Champions.

New Mexico: NM

New York: There are multiple athletic associations, one of which is affiliated with the National Federation of High Schools. It slots non-public schools into divisions based on past success, enrollment and level of competition.

North Carolina: The state association does not allow non-boarding parochial schools to provide financial aid to athletes. There are also separate associations for independent and Christian schools.

Ohio: A competitive balance referendum is up for vote by state principals for the fourth consecutive year. The current plan includes sports-specific multipliers for football, volleyball, basketball, baseball, softball and soccer.

North Dakota: NM

Oklahoma: A state association committee is exploring reclassification in all sports.

Oregon: The state association rejected a multiplier proposal in 2012.

Pennsylvania: Competitive balance remains an ongoing issue. Prior to 1972, parochial schools competed in a separate association. The state government stopped a proposed return to split associations in 2000.

Rhode Island: NM

South Carolina: There is an independent school state association, but privates and publics also compete together in a separate association.

South Dakota: NM

Tennessee: Schools are split into two divisions: Division I for publics and privates that don't provide financial aid, and Division II for privates that offer financial aid. A 1.8 multiplier is applied to privates in Division I.

Texas: There are separate associations for public and private schools, but the public association is exploring the idea of including private schools.

Utah: NM

Vermont: NM

Virginia: There are separate tournaments and state associations for public and private schools.

Washington: NM

West Virginia: NM

Wisconsin: Separation of public and private schools ended in the 1990s. The state association created a committee in 2014 to examine competitive balance after a multiplier formula was proposed.

Wyoming: NM

Coach-To-Coach Mentoring Program

Ever had a question about how to do your job as a coach and not know where to turn for an answer? Need the name of an experienced coach who you could talk to in confidence about answering that question - or solving that problem? The MHSFCA has initiated a new "mentoring" program that you can turn to for this kind of help. Called Coach-To-Coach, that is exactly what it is. Experienced coaches who have a long standing relationship with the MHSFCA (Past Presidents, Regional Directors, Committee Members, etc.) have agreed to have their names and contact information listed at MHSFCA.com as volunteer mentors. If you have something you need help with, look over the list, contact one (or more) of the Coach-To-Coach volunteers. Each of the volunteers has several years of coaching experience. Get their advice. It's free and confidential.

MHSFCA Recruiting Position Paper

The purpose of this Recruiting Position Paper is to bring focus and clarity to the high school football recruiting process. The Michigan High School Football Coaches Association and our State of Michigan College Coaches have joined together with the hope of properly educating our parents and student athletes. We all are concerned with the number of misleading business practices that do nothing to help students fulfill their dream of a college athletic career.

Areas of Concern:

a. Paying a Private Recruiting Services is not advised: Paying a recruiting service for "exposure" or for help with the recruiting process does little to help in recruiting. The NCAA mandates and approves all recruiting services colleges can use. Most of these services are not accessible to the public. All of these services are free to the high school coach and student athletes. There is no harm in using "free" services, but make sure the services are NCAA approved. Most emails and "exposure" packets sent by services paid at the parents expense is considered "spam" and mostly sent to the trash.

b. Private Combines and Showcases: Results from combines most local, private "combines" or "showcases" are questionable and Numbers and scores from such events may not be credible to a college coach. National combines may have more clout but are usually invitation only. In addition, the NCAA has very strict guidelines colleges need to follow as well as possible issues regarding amateur status.

c. "AAU" model events: AAU coaches exist now in football and the trend is growing. The AAU coach also forms a relationship with the student athlete. You should choose wisely in regards to this process. Football coaches at all levels disagree with the AAU type approach becoming a part of high school football. Led by the Southeastern Conference (SEC) most colleges will no longer allow such events held on their campuses. There are a number of legislative proposals at all levels of football to restrict such events. These events may offer intense competition and some skill improvement, but real game performance still determines scholarship offers. *The NCAA has already acted to prohibit AAU teams from competing on D1 campuses.

Truths of the Recruiting Process:

a. Exposure: Exposure comes from your high school coach. College coaches will continue to acquire prospect information from the high school coaches. These relationships are based on a trust built over time. Secondly, send every college a personal letter and game DVD yourself. All college programs have a staff directory on their web sites.

b. Role of the High School Coach: Every college coach wants a truthful relationship with the high school coach. Truthful is the key factor. College coaches use a number of sources to cross-check every potential prospect. Inflated numbers, dishonest evaluations can hurt the high school coach's future recruits. The role of the high school coach is to:

1. Supply viewable game tapes (in winter of junior year for most D1, middle to end of season for seniors.

2. Correct and honest student bio information and a copy of the high school transcript.

3. Complete the NCAA approved recruiting services forms so the prospects are listed in the publication.

4. Attending the MHSFCA December recruiting fairs should also be fulfilled by either the high school head coach or a member of the high school staff. A number of colleges will only recruit our state at these fairs.

c. Attend College Camps: This is where most college scholarships are awarded. Attend and perform at the different college camps in-front of college coaches. Student athletes need to perform in front of the college coaches. College coaches want information they can trust. Performing on a college campus and against other prospects can reinforce a prospects evaluation. All camp dates are on every web site.

d. Game Tapes: "The eye in the sky doesn't lie!" College coaches evaluate student athletes based on real game tape footage. Make sure the college coaches have your game tape at the appropriate time (December of Junior year for D1). If they feel you are a real prospect, they will connect with you or your coach (given NCAA restrictions). The higher the division desired, the earlier the tapes are needed. For example, some D1 offers could be based on sophomore and most are based on junior game tape.

Important Aspects of Fulfilling the Dream of a Collegiate Athletic Career

1. Understand the NCAA and NAIA Academic Eligibility rules before the student athletes ninth grade year begins. The NCAA continues to add more restrictions to their eligibility process. The Class of 2013 will now need 16 core classes to qualify as a D2 athlete. The Class of 2015 will need a 2.3 GPA to qualify as a D1 athlete. Academic eligibility begins with the first semester report card in the 9th grade. All students and parents need to calculate the students NCAA CORE GPA every semester beginning with the 9th grade.

2. The overall GRADE POINT AVERAGE (GPA) is the most important number in the recruiting process. The higher the GPA above a 3.0, the more athletic opportunities a student athlete may available. The most important high school report card is the first semester of the student athletes ninth grade.

3. Academic Scholarships are Guaranteed: College athletic scholarships are limited and in high demand. Academic scholarships are available at all colleges and universities. All students can earn academic scholarships but athletic offers are determined by the evaluation of college coaches. Again, the most important report card is high school is the first semester of the 9th grade year. The Michigan High School Football Coaches Association and the State of Michigan College Coaches will continue to work together and educate our student athletes and parents. We understand the college athletic dream is a powerful motivator and all student athletes deserve the opportunity to fulfill their dream.
