May 2016

2016 HALL OF FAME BANQUET AND INDUCTION

BACK TO CRISLER, JUST LIKE THE OLD DAYS, ANOTHER OUTSTANDING EVENING

Jim Harbaugh, University of Michigan Head Coach, congratulates the 2016 Hall of Fame inductees at the Banquet and Induction ceremony held at the Crisler Center on March 12.

he University of Michigan has been the host for this extraordinary evening for 34 years. In 1982 the first inductees to the MHSFCA Hall of Fame, the original board of directors, were introduced at the clinic in Jackson. In 1992 they were officially inducted at the banquet and induction ceremony at the Crisler Arena on the University of Michigan Campus.

2016 Hall of Fame Inductees

When "Bo" Shembechler heard about the Hall of Fame he thought that recognition of this importance should be held somewhere other than at a clinic, so he offered the University of Michigan as the venue for this auspicious event. From 1983 through 1995 the induction was held at Crisler Arena. From 1996 through 2009 the induction switched from Crisler Arena to the Track and Field Building depending on what other activities the university was holding at the time. In 2010 the Sheraton Ann Arbor Hotel hosted the induction and continued to do so through 2015. Then in 2016, the induction returned to the Crisler Center, formerly known as Crisler Arena.

The evening began, as always, with MHSFCA Executive Director Larry Merx giving an overview of the association and highlighting the "Wall of Fame", permanently displayed at the University of Michigan Football Stadium, "The Big House". Along with many other aspects of the association, the "Virtual Hall of Fame" was explained and is available to all Michigan High School Football Fans on the website MHSFCA.com.

Brad Bush, President, of the MHSFCA welcomed those in attendance: "... Our association is honored and proud to recognize these most deserving inductees. Your presence here is a testimony to the influence that these gentlemen have on your lives, the lives of your children and to the quality of life in your schools and community. ...It is with great pleasure that the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association enshrines these fine coaches and welcomes them into a select company of the greatest, most talented, and devoted men to have coached the game of football in Michigan. All of you are truly Hall of Famers, congratulations and thank you."

In 1983, Head Coach "Bo" Schembechler introduced "Woody" Hayes as the guest speaker for the evening. Ara Parseghian, "Duffy" Daugherty, George Perles, Jim Harkema, and Herb Deromedi, all former head coaches at major universities have highlighted the evening. Also, University of Michigan head football coaches "Bo" Schembechler, Gary Moeller, Lloyd Carr, Rich Rodriguez, and Brady Hoke have given the main address. Many assistant coaches of the Michigan Wolverines have also been guest speakers.

This great tradition was once again highlighted by the presence of the 20th Head Football Coach of the Michigan Wolverines, Coach Jim Harbaugh. Coach Harbaugh had everyone's attention as he emphasized, not on just the wins and losses, and but on the importance high school football coaches can have on young men, their families, the community, and on the future of these young individuals whom they coach.

But the highlight of the evening was the acceptance speeches given by the inductees. Since 1983, new inductees to the Hall of Fame are individually introduced to family, friends, past and present fellow coaches, present and former players. Each inductee's coaching credentials, years of coaching, team and individual accomplishments are presented to those in attendance and the inductees then, in turn, relate what coaching has meant to them. This was the 34th Annual Induction. Including this year's inductees, the MHSFCA has inducted 713 of the finest high school football coaches in the state of Michigan into the Hall of fame, and each induction has a personality all its own.

Thirteen Outstanding Coaches - Thirteen outstanding individuals. Their names and credentials will be enshrined forever in the MHSFCA Hall of Fame and displayed at the University of Michigan's Football Stadium. These gentlemen, as of March 12, 2016, at the high school related level in the state of Michigan have coached for a combined total of: 369 seasons of coaching, have won 2,541 football games, and won 23 state championships. But most of all touched the lives of countless individuals. The inductees expressed their love of coaching and their love of football. They recognized those who have made it possible for them to do what they love – coach football.

The inductees are men of achievement and integrity, who give credit to their families, their players, their fellow coaches, and their communities for their success.

Many constants remain the same to make this an exceptional evening for the inductees, their families and friends. One such constant is the dedication of the members of the association who see to the many details that go into organizing, maintaining, and preparing for the evening. They, behind the scenes, give their time and energy, with no thanks needed, to maintain and preserve the tradition and integrity of the Hall of Fame.

The 34th Annual MHSFCA Hall of Fame Induction and Banquet was once again a truly remarkable evening. Congratulations to the Inductees: The Class of 2016. The Best of the Best and the Finest of the Finest.

Complete Inductee Hall of Fame acceptance speeches may be found on the website at:

The Class of 2016

Coach Patrick Connors: "My goal was to always get the most out of my players, but also help them undertand what it takes to be great students, sons, friends, and teammates..." Accepting for Coach Connors was Tom Saylor, 1991 Hall of Fame inductee.

Coach Noel Dean: "It allowed me access to being a part of my children's lives and their friend's lives on a very intimate day to day level."

Coach Roy Dudas: "I grew up loving the game. From the conditioning, the practices, the camaraderie... my life revolved around it."

Coach Scott Farley: "Football families have been our family's social circles."

Coach Ed Greenman: "Coaching is a blessing. Something I will cherish the rest of my life."

Coach Terry Haas: "I believe football is the greatest team sport that teaches young people to depend on each other for their team's success."

Coach Dale A. Harvel: "Coaching high school football has been my life. Would not change a thing; love the game, no regrets."

Coach Terry Hessbrook: "To hopefully have an impact on our players the way that my coaches did when I was young."

Coach David Hudson: "All high school sports are great, but Friday nights, in the fall, are the most exciting nights of the year."

Coach Chuck Hulce: "This is not a one way street. In return, I have been enriched continuously by my association with my players."

Coach Jeff Olson: "It has satisfied my craving for competition, but also has given me a purpose in life to give young athletes tools to be successful with any goals they set for themselves."

Coach Jim Sutton: "I enjoy the competition, the strategy and everything involved in prepping for the game."

Coach Robert Zimmerman: "Ultimately, I believe the reason we coach is because of the potential positive impact that we can have on the futures of our players."

There Is Nothing Like High School Football, And We Need To Remember That

had the opportunity to play football on every level
– from Pop Warner to the NFL – and for me there is nothing like high school football.

What makes high school football so special goes well beyond the Xs and Os. It reflects in the genuine love and passion that players, coaches and fans exhibit for the sport and for each other.

Once athletes and coaches get beyond high school ball, the game becomes more of a business. Factors such as scholarships, salaries, facilities, apparel contracts and TV deals help decide what takes place on and off the field, how the game is played from the player's perspective and how it is perceived by fans.

In high school, these things are a pipe dream to most participants and far enough off to not impact the classrooms, weight rooms and fields where coaches and players prepare for Friday nights. It's about school and community pride, playing alongside friends – many of whom have known each other since kindergarten.

On Friday nights across America, entire cities shut down and everyone convenes at the local high school football game. Players and coaches pour it all out on the field in an effort to prevail. Fans pack the stands to support and cheer on student-athletes they know and have relationships with. There is a genuine love and desire to see the team and players do well.

In college and the pros, fan passion is most often directed at the schools or franchises. Players have celebrity status but no real connection to those in the stands—outside of their own family and friends. And as the relationship becomes more impersonal, the connections between fan and player stretch even further apart.

The bonds and relationships formed in high school by Travis B. Key, courtesy of USA Football typically last a lifetime. For me, college football was similar but the business aspect dominates the professional locker room. Many of my best friends in life today are guys I played high school and college ball with. I can count on one hand the number of guys I still keep in contact with from my professional days.

This is not a reelection on the game itself. Tens of millions of Americans love football at its highest level and for good reason.

This is a plea for high school coaches, administrators, players, parents and fans to recognize this reality and help teenagers understand the opportunities that football is giving them right now – whether they play a single down after their senior year or not.

I am concerned that some high school football programs are starting to take on the business mindset of college and professional football. Apparel contracts and long-distance travel are tearing away the fabric of what high school football is and should be.

Coaches at powerhouse schools are beginning to garner the salaries of college coaches, and winning is the sole bottom line over developing athletes as people. In time, I fear the true essence of high school football will be lost if we continue down this path.

High school football has always been about building a solid foundation for a young person's life based principles and experiences that can only be taught through the game. It is about cultivating genuine relationships between players, coaches and a community of fans.

There is nothing like high school football. Let's do a better job preserving it. Work hard. Be great.

East • West All Star Game Just Around the Corner

by Jim Sparks, All Star Chair Clawson, High School

s we turn the calendar to May, the 34th East vs. West All Star Football Game is drawing nearer. Our coaching staffs have been picking up the pace and rounding both teams into shape. Both rosters are pretty much set. As usual we tinker a little bit due to graduation parties and other conflicts, but we are pretty much good to go. After looking over the rosters, it is a strong group of young men that will guarantee a competitive and highly skilled contest on June 25th at SVSU.

This past month both teams had their first practice, and we need to thank Grand Valley State and Detroit Country Day for opening their doors and allowing us to use their facilities. I would also like to recognize the efforts of our team liaisons, Adam Dias for the East and Jason McIntyre of the West. Both of these gentleman have been working daily on organizing the rosters and making sure our players get all of the information they need.

If you are a coach with a player in the game, please help us out by supporting your player in every way possible. Your player will need helmet, shoulder pads, practice pants, girdle, knee, and thigh pads. In addition to supplying equipment to your player, please stress the importance of selling program ads and helping him sell as many as possible. The funds raised really go a long way to guarantee our All Star game remains something we can all be proud of.

Finally, contact your local media outlets and let them know about your player's participation in this year's game. The more we can get the word out the better experience we provide to everybody involved.

The West All Star Team's first practice preparing for the June 25th contest at SVSU.

Practice was held at GVSU on Sunday, April 17th.

The Sideline Community- Communication Between Coaches and Officials

The 40th President of the United States, Ronald Reagan, was known as the "Great Communicator." He was one of the finest orators in our nation's history, and could be informative, entertaining and convincing when he spoke to his various constituencies. Regardless of anyone's political affiliation, allegiance or leaning, most will agree he was a highly effective speaker.

While we realize that very few individuals will ever receive the public acclaim that went Reagan's way for communicating with the masses, the MHSAA spends a good deal of time training football officials to become better communicators. An annual goal we have for all sideline officials is for these individuals to be good communicators. For this issue of the MHSFCA Newsletter, we thought we would share three common communication themes we teach our linesmen and line judges so coaches can better understand what officials are trained to do in terms of sideline communication. We have also provided a coaching "translation" of how this information can help your team and coaching staff next fall to have more positive nights in working with your officials.

Teaching Point #1: Sideline officials need to be approachable for each team's head coach in answering reasonable questions or concerns.

What this means for Officials: Officials need to be able to respond to the head coach when reasonable questions or concerns exist. When the head coach approaches the sideline official and asks a question (not a sarcastic comment or is just venting), we need to do our best as officials to provide that information. There may be times where we can't answer immediately, but tell the coach you will get him that answer or information just as soon as you can. It may be possible that the question directly relates to something called or seen by an official in the middle or opposite side of the field. In that case, simply inform your coach that the game cannot be stopped to answer that question but you will get him that information just as soon as the opportunity presents itself.

Officials need to understand that football is an emot ional game. Players and coaches put in a great deal of time and work in preparation for the season, and officials need to keep their emotions in-check when working with people that have invested a great deal into the results of these games. We need our sideline officials to diffuse situations when possible, working hard to be effective communicators with your head coach even when things are not going well.

Translation for Coaches: There will be times during a game when you have a question or need further information. You need to ask that question in a tone relative of how you would expect the official to respond. In other words, if you won't appreciate an official yelling back at you, don't yell your question or issue at him. Try and remove the emotion from the situation and make the conversation about business, and keep the conversation in both directions at a professional and conversational level when possible.

Teaching Point #2: Communicate directly with the head coach and limit conversation with other staff members.

What this means for Officials: Many football sidelines will be filled with many well-intentioned adults that are there to provide help and support for the kids playing the game. On varsity nights, in particular, the number of sideline personnel can grow to levels where individuals are on the sideline with little or no responsibilities, which become challenging because they often turn into "super fans" and simply want to help officiate the game. It is important that when you have confrontations with other sideline staff and personnel you bring it to the attention of the head coach. A conversation such as this does wonders in many cases. "Coach, I need your help. I will do my best to work with you all game in giving you the information you need; I will struggle with this, however, if I have to continue to deal with the yelling/ screaming/managing of other coaches on the sideline." Try to do your best to work with the head coach in getting help.

Translation for Coaches: You have many people in your school community or coaching staff that want to see your team do well, and they simply want to help. Let these folks know that attempting to officiate the game is not helping you or your team. The person that loves to stand on your sideline and scream, "HOLDING, HOLDING" at every snap when the opponent is on offense is not helping your cause. It turns into the "boy who cried wolf" mentality where if there is a yell or complaint on every snap, the official will tune that out as background noise. You will be far more effective if you pick your spots and ask or question things that are legitimate rather than pick something on every play.

Teaching Point #3: Disagreements between officials and coaches are part of the game. However, personal attacks or threats shall not be tolerated and must be penalized.

What this means for Officials and Coaches: There are many times during a game where coaches and officials will need to "agree to disagree". There will be plays or situations where these two groups will not see eye-to-eye, and if the disagreement is left at a professional level both sides can move forward in handling their prescribed duties as a coach or official.

Personal attacks, however, cannot be tolerated. Key words are when coaches use the term "you" or "you're" immediately before a comment or attack. In other words, a coach screams, yells or says "you are terrible" or "you're a homer", the flag must be thrown. Personal attacks or an attack on one's integrity must not be tolerated, and shall be penalized by rule.

This would also include a coach threatening an official with a poor rating. Ratings are used by the MHSAA for tournament selection purposes and must be done as a professional exchange from the coach with an honest performance assessment of an official and crew. The MHSAA would never tolerate an official threatening a coach with a certain call or non-call during a game; this same rule must be followed by having no tolerance for coaches threatening officials with poor ratings during the game.

Hopefully these paragraphs provide coaches with some insight regarding the communication expectations and training the MHSAA provides for officials, and you can use this information to make your sideline the best it can be for officials to work with you and your team next fall. The game of football can only grow and improve when coaches and officials work together to be the very best communicators they can be. Have a safe and productive summer!
